Bottled water on the outs?

City alderman wants ban

NEIL MACKINNON
neil.mackinnon@metronews.ca

Joe Ceci has been off the bottle for months.

An avid water drinker, the Calgary alderman hits the tap regularly and applauded a move by London, Ont., city council Monday to ban the sale of bottled water in municipal buildings.

A motion isn't in the works for Calgary, but Ceci said he'd be discussing the matter with colleagues, and thinks it would be easy to follow London's move and that it would be supported by the public.

"It's a definite waste of natural resources and the bottles basically get sent to the landfill," he said. "I take a lot of pride in the city's water, I think everyone on council does, and that's all bottled water is, a re-branded version of what comes out of your tap."

"I'd like to see the entire city get off the bottle."

The bottling industry, however, views the move as a "disturbing precedent."

"This is a clear attack on consumer choice," said Justin Sherwood of Refreshments Canada, which represents more than 30 brands. "This is entirely the wrong way to go with a healthy beverage and if the city wants to really address the issues around this, they should direct more attention to recycling initiatives."

Police believe latest murder victim targeted over drugs

BELTLINE City cops are piecing together a known dope dealer's final hours in hopes of honing in on his killer.

Staff Sgt. Kevin Forsen said Efreem Mehari Kuflo, 30, was known to frequent the Beltline around 11 St. SW between 12 Ave. and 13 Ave., a "crack cocaine" area, where he was shot around 11:30 a.m. Monday.

Forsen said Calgary's 23rd murder this year wasn't random and was likely drug-related, but no drugs were found on Kuflo.

"The gang unit was contacted and they're acting as a resource but there's no information at this time that he was a gang member or gang associate," Forsen said.

Police have vague information on two possible suspects, but are looking for a dark-skinned man in his early to mid-20s seen fleeing the scene.

Leave it to the karate kids to chop for charity.

The Amateur Karate Foundation (AKF) will be hosting what they hope will be their first annual We Are Tough Enough to Wear Pink fundraiser at North Hill Centre this Saturday, chopping blocks of wood and bricks to raise money for the Canadian Cancer Society.

"I don't know anybody that hasn't been touched by cancer in some way," said Richard Fossey, president of AKF and head instructor for its sub-club, Karate at SAIT.

There will be 24 students, ranging in age from 12 to 17, with adult students and instructors, that have pledged to break as many as five blocks during the 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. performance.

"It takes a fair amount of energy to (break one board), but to do it more than once in a long while takes training and technique," he said.

The group hopes to raise about $10,000 between personal fundraising, corporate sponsorship, and public donations, and Fossey estimates they're about half way there.

Bricks in honour of a person touched by cancer or a company that has bought one for $1,000 will also be broken, and anyone who donates over $20 will have their name entered into draws for prizes and will be eligible for a tax receipt.

Chumir clinic gets $5.1 million

HEALTH Calgary's Sheldon M. Chumir Health Centre may be at the epicenter of the province's efforts to improve health care access, according to Alberta's minister of health and wellness.

Ron Liepert said yesterday that the $5.1 million funding announcement would be used to finish the Centre's eighth floor and should help improve front-line access to physicians and enable new family doctors to train alongside other health care providers.

The funding, which will support the creation of an innovative health clinic to serve 30,000 patients every year, should also foster a team-based approach to service integration, allowing the province to address shortages of health care providers as well as mounting capacity pressures, Liepert said.

They could have let the graffiti get them down, but instead they followed the old adage 'if you can't beat 'em, join 'em.'

Now, the walls of the Rehabilitation Society of Calgary (RSC), once overtaken by vandals, are now "glorified graffiti", created by members of the centre and community volunteers.

"We were getting complaints from neighbours and the city, and we thought, instead of painting it blank for the vandals to hit again, we decided to create our own," team coordinator Noreen Branagh told Metro.

The RSC is a non-profit organization for persons with disabilities and is member run and operated.

unveiling

- The public is invited to the unveiling on Friday at noon at the centre located at # 7, 11 St NE.

Branagh said there are four volunteer artists working on the project and members of the centre also added their touch to the wall.

Shauna De-Andrea is the main artist working on the project, and pitched her rough draft to the society and started work on the project in July.

"At first some of the members were intimidated to put their paint up on the wall, but once it got started, it kind of just got rolling from there," she said, while taking a brief break from the artistry.

Speed zones enforced at modified schools

SAFETY City cops are reminding motorists that year-round school zones are back in effect and to slow the summer driving down.

On Monday, thousands of students at 16 modified public schools went back to class and traffic unit education officer Cst. Mike O'Connor is warning motorists to obey the rules of the road.

"We just want motorists to obey the signs, which are designated in year-round schools as such, and to remember that students are back in class now," he said.

O'Connor said officers are usually out monitoring school and playground zones during the beginning of the school year, resulting in higher infractions.

"We just want the kids to be safe. Parents should be careful where they park

school rules

- There is no passing allowed in school zones
- 30 km/h limit in playground and school zones
- No parking within five meters of crosswalks.

on the roads and also remind their kids to be careful walking across the street," he said, adding sometimes people forget school is back in.

The rest of the schools begin classes Sept. 2 and police will be out in full force.

No confirmation yet on possible West Nile infection

HEALTH It's still too early to tell if Alberta does indeed have its first human case of West Nile virus this year, says Alberta Health and Wellness.

While no details about who has contracted the mosquito-borne virus were released, spokesperson John Tuckwell told Metro tests are still being conducted to determine the facts.

"First of all, we have to confirm it's a case of West Nile, and from there we would inform the public," he said.

Tuckwell said Albertans should still be vigilant in protecting themselves by taking the necessary precautions, including using a mosquito repellent with DEET.

PM to consult other parties

Fall election seems likely as Dion, Harper trade barbs

With a public exchange of dares, Prime Minister Stephen Harper and Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion are signalling a fall election is all but certain.

Harper said yesterday he would consult the other parties about the chance of a "productive fall session" and contacted Dion's office to kick-start the process. "The fact of the matter is that what I will have to decide over the next few weeks is whether or not we can have a productive fall session of Parliament, or whether in fact the government, a government, needs a new mandate," he said in Hamilton yesterday.

"Many Canadians are telling me now, more than ever before, 'we're ready for an election.'"

Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion

Dion "has indicated that the government should be defeated, but he's not sure when he'll do that because he hasn't got good enough polls," Harper added.

At a press conference in Ottawa, Dion said he's ready to replace a prime minister he says can't be believed or trusted.

Russia drags its heels

A column of Russian tanks and armoured vehicles left the Georgian town of Gori yesterday, but NATO said it was freezing contacts with Moscow until all Russian forces were out of the Black Sea state.

Western powers have called for an immediate withdrawal of Russian troops from core Georgia under a ceasefire plan that ended 10 days of fighting over the rebel province of South Ossetia.

NATO ministers backed this demand with a freeze on contacts, but did not announce moves to speed up Georgian accession to the military alliance, as Tbilisi had hoped.

U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice harshly criticized Moscow as "the outlaw in this conflict," she said. "They intend and probably still do intend to strangle Georgia and its economy."

Russian President Dmit-

UN resolution

The UN Security Council met yesterday to discuss a resolution demanding a ceasefire, the return of Georgian forces to their usual bases and Russia's immediate withdrawal to lines held before the conflict.

ry Medvedev has said that Russian forces would by Friday pull back to the positions set out under the French-brokered ceasefire. U.S. officials said they had not seen any substantial withdrawal so far.

In Gori, on Georgia's main east-west highway, six Russian armoured personnel carriers, three tanks and two other vehicles drove out. A Russian official said it was one of the first units to pull out.

Russian-Canadian energy deals at risk

Prime Minister Stephen Harper allowed yesterday for the possibility of commercial natural gas deals with Russia being put at risk by Russia's military actions in neighbouring Georgia.

Asked if such deals could be at risk, Harper said: "We're examining obviously all aspects of our relationship. We're obviously focusing on aspects that have to do with the strategic and military situation, but we will of course review everything."

In May, Russia's Gazprom, the world's largest natural gas company, announced it was joining Enbridge Inc., Gaz Metro and Gaz de France in developing an $840-million Cdn liquefied natural gas project on the St. Lawrence River at Levis, across from Quebec City.

The 500-million cubic feet of gas a day from the plant would supply the Quebec and Ontario markets. REUTERS

10 French soldiers killed in ambush

AFGHANISTAN French President Nicolas Sarkozy prepared to fly to Afghanistan a day after 10 French soldiers were killed and 21 wounded in a clash with Taliban, and declared France remained committed to its mission there.

The soldiers were killed Monday when their unit was ambushed on a reconnaissance mission east of Kabul. REUTERS

Lawyers celebrate Pervez Musharraf's resignation in Karachi yesterday.

Pakistani coalition divided

ISLAMABAD A day after President Pervez Musharraf quit, Pakistan's fractious coalition government squabbled over the judiciary and a suicide bomb killed 25 people, underscoring the challenges the nation faces.

Coalition leaders, who opposed Musharraf, met to tackle pressing economic and security problems and to discuss a new president, but got bogged down over the fate of judges Musharraf purged last year.

The bickering, and the prospects of more to come, are likely to dismay investors and allies. "If they cannot agree on the restoration of the judges ... clearly something is not right with the coalition," said analyst Farid Khan.

"They need to get to the economy, and only a strong government can take the tough decisions needed for the economy," Khan said.

In the northern town of Dera Ismail Khan yesterday, a Taliban bomber struck a hospital as Shiite Muslims protested against the killing of a leader earlier in the day. REUTERS

Despatie exceeds expectations

Canadian diver overcomes injury to snatch silver in Beijing

YorkReport

Marty York

marty.york@metronews.ca

Members of the Canadian Olympic Committee, who are responsible for anything and everything regarding this country's involvement in the Games, did not think diver Alexandre Despatie would win a medal in Beijing.

I know because, while preparing for Metro's coverage of the Olympics a few months ago, I picked the brains of several COC members in an effort to determine who Canadians could count on to garner medals during these Olympics. I took notes, of course, but I assured the members they wouldn't be identified, so they shared their thoughts.

"The obvious medal hopefuls," one of the COC voices told me, "are the men's eight rowing team and (kayaker) Adam van Koeeverden. Brent Hayden is a world-class swimmer and we think he has a great chance, too. And we think Tyler Christopher has a shot in track."

"What about Despatie?" I asked. "He's a world champion."

"We don't think he can overcome his injury problems," came the reply. "He was probably our best bet before he got hurt, but we don't like his chances now." So see what the COC saw? It was bang-on about the men's eight and probably will be by the time van Koeeverden is done this week, but Hayden and Christopher came up short.

And, despite a foot injury and back problems, Despatie finished second yesterday in the men's three-metre springboard in Beijing.

"I could sense people gave up on me," the 23-year-old Quebecer said. "I knew what they were thinking and I might have had the same opinion about myself if I didn't know myself so well. I knew I could bounce back."

Despatie fractured his right foot in April after kicking, of all things, a soccer ball. That caused him to miss seven weeks of training and prevented him from attending the Olympic diving trials. He qualified for the Olympics in early July, only after attending the Canadian junior national championships and proving his fitness to a panel of judges.

"I had to prove a lot to many people, but I never gave up hope on myself," Despatie said. "And, as far as I'm concerned, my silver medal is gold to me, because of all the bad things that happened to me this year."

Despatie's silver is one of 13 Canadian medals in Beijing, surpassing the 12 our nation won in Athens in 2004. There are more to come — van Koeeverden almost certainly will ensure that — and, as the 2008 Olympics wind down, Canada's athletes really aren't doing too terribly.

They've even exceeded the expectations of their own governing body.

Marty York has been a groundbreaking sports columnist and broadcaster in Canada for decades.

Toronto's Jason Burnett jumped to Canada's second silver in trampoline in as many days yesterday in Beijing. Toronto's Karen Cockburn won the first on Monday.

Burnett flips way to silver

Not to be flip about it, but Canada just got bounced out of gold in trampoline yesterday.

Pipped at the post by China again, and this time home field advantage may have had something to do with the outcome.

Exhibit A: Jason Burnett, with a 16.8 degree of difficulty in his 10-trick routine, hardest program in the field, certainly riskiest, particularly that double layout with four twists — going backwards.

Exhibit B: Lu Chunlong, with a 16.2 degree of difficulty, nice but not especially notable.

Must have picked up lots of form points, however, to seize gold, the "execution" part of trampoline a totally subjective judgment, in front of an audience that might not have accepted anything less. Own the podium indeed.

Burnett, the 21-year-old Toronto resident was second out of the chute yesterday, scoring 40.70. Lu, top qualifier, got up on the apparatus last and came down with 41.00.

"I think the home crowd advantage gave the Chinese lad a bit of a boost," Canadian coach and trampoline guru Dave Ross suggested mildly. "That was enough to put Jason into second place. To me, he did the best routine today."

No matter, really. Burnett was over the moon about his silver medal, which matched the result from 24 hours previous by teammate Karen Cockburn, similarly inched out by a Chinese female.

"That rocks! That was awesome!" Burnett crowed after climbing down from the second-step podium.

He would not be drawn into any unsportsmanlike commentary about the scoring or the hypothesis that he'd been jobbed. "Some people might think so but I can't say."

Canadian hurdler nets medal after photo finish

ATHLETICS Canadian Priscilla Lopes-Schliep won bronze in the women's 100-metre hurdles yesterday at the Beijing Olympics in photo finish.

Dawn Harper of the United States raced to the gold in 12.54 seconds, but there was no clear silver or bronze winners among a group who trailed her.

After a couple of minutes wait, Australia's Sally McLellan was awarded silver and Lopes-Schliep, a native of Whitby, Ont., took bronze with the same time of 12.64.

"It was an intense race and I came through and got the third, so I'm very pleased," Lopes-Schliep told CBC Sports.

Her medal is Canada's first Olympic athletics medal since 1996 in Atlanta.

Red Sox' Beckett to miss next start

Boston Red Sox starting pitcher Josh Beckett, left, will miss his scheduled start against the Blue Jays on Saturday because of numbness in the pinky and ring finger on his right hand. The 28-year-old righty confirmed he has persevered through the injury for most of the season and felt he needed some time off. Beckett was roughed up for eight runs on eight hits in less than three innings against Toronto on Sunday, and is just 2-4 in his last six starts.

Blue Jays 2 Yankees 1

The Toronto Blue Jays took advantage of misplayed ball by Yankees centre-fielder Johnny Damon to defeat New York 2-1 last night.

Toronto starter A.J. Burnett (16-9) tossed a gem, going eight innings, allowing only five hits, while striking out 13.

The only run he allowed was in the first inning. He walked the lead-off hitter Damon, who scored on a double by Bobby Abreu.

The Jays weren't able to solve Yankees starting pitcher Darrell Rasner until the seventh inning.

Adam Lind continued his hot play hitting a solo home run to tie the game. It was Lind's third game in a row with a home run.

Toronto Blue Jays starter A.J. Burnett pitched eight innings, allowing only five hits and one run while striking out 13 batters to lead the Jays to a 2-1 win over the New York Yankees last night.

One inning later Joe Inglett got a two-out single off of reliever Jose Veras. Marco Scutaro then hit a deep fly ball to centre-field that went off of Damon's glove and allowed Inglett to score the winning run.

Volkswagen's tempting Tiguan

Cute-ute has built-in style

MARK ATKINSON
for Metro Canada

Based on the same platform that underpins the Rabbit and Jetta, Volkswagen's Tiguan is a compact five-passenger crossover aimed squarely at Honda's CR-V, the Nissan Rogue and Toyota's RAV4.

Size-wise, the "Tig" is actually quite compact, looking smaller than a CR-V. Blacked-out door pillars help lend a sporty theme to its smart styling, while all models come with a small roof spoiler and front fog lamps.

Inside, the styling takes a bit of a turn away from previous VW efforts by using circular vents, knobs and other controls rather than the squared-off look in the company's Passat, Jetta and Touareg models.

Material use is class leading as well, with good ergonomics and plenty of useful storage spots. Even the front passenger seat folds flat to accommodate long items.

As with the conventions set with the rest of the Volkswagen lineup, there are three versions of the Tiguan: Trendline, Comfortline and Highline.

Trendline is the only version available with a six-speed manual transmission and/or front-wheel-drive, and starts at $27,575. It's well-equipped with power everything, heated mirrors, 16-inch wheels, 40/20/20 split folding/sliding rear seats, eight-way adjustable front seats, audio auxiliary input, climate control, cruise control, an electronic parking brake and floor mats. Adding the six-speed automatic hikes the price to $28,975, while opting for the 4Motion (all-wheel-drive) model takes the total to $30,975.

VW's Tiguan is aimed squarely at CUV competitors such as Honda and Toyota.

Next up is the Comfortline, which at $33,975 includes upgrades like 17-inch wheels, power driver's seat, black roof rails, heated front seats and washer nozzles, leather-wrapped steering wheel and shift knob, trip computer, snazzier cloth seating, panoramic sunroof and privacy glass.

The loaded $38,375 Highline brings 18-inch wheels, 12-way power seats with memory, auto-dimming interior mirror, automatic xenon headlights, more bright trim, dual-zone climate control, leather seats and more.

2008 VW Tiguan

Under the hood is VW's familiar 2.0-litre, turbocharged, four-cylinder with a 200-horsepower output. Fuel economy is decent as well: 11.6 L/100 km city and 8.3 L/100 km highway.

At Coastal Trek, hiking's the thing

Vancouver Island wellness retreat just what the doctor ordered

ANNE DIMON
for Metro Canada

It's 6:00 a.m. when Tracy knocks on my door. Her cheery "good morning" is just loud enough to make sure I'm awake.

It's time for Sunrise Yoga at Coastal Trek Health and Fitness and sure enough, a bright orange crescent is peaking over the Coastal Mountains. Hugging a remote location on the edge of Forbidden Plateau, 20-minutes from the town of Comox and a three-hour drive from Victoria, this intimate, family-run retreat is all about health and fitness.

"It's not a boot camp," says Andrea Stuchbery, who with her husband

Shayne, owns and operates the resort, "but a structured program designed to inspire guests to adopt a healthy, balanced lifestyle through fitness and healthy eating." Overlooking the evergreen-studded Comox Valley, Georgia Strait and the mountain range beyond, the timber-framed west coast-style lodge houses 12 guestrooms, kitchen, dining room, fitness studio and a small spa. There's also a Great Room with a stone fireplace hand-crafted by a local artist.

Following yoga class, breakfast is served on a dining room table carved from one massive tree trunk. Over fruit, yogurt, cereal toast and eggs cooked-to-order, lead hiking guide Mike Blake, explains today's outing. From a selection of about 100 nearby options, a different hike is scheduled each day based on the interests and fitness levels of guests.

We pick up bottles of water, our picnic lunches and head to the nearby town of Campbell River. Since, today's hike will take us to Cortez Island, our little group is hitching a ride from Captain Dan Williams and The Morningstar, a study, six-passenger, aluminum work boat.

An hour later we cruise into Cortez Bay for the 90-minute hike up to Hague Lake in Kw'as Park where we stop for a lunch of quinoa salad, baby carrots just pulled out of a local farmers garden, an organic peach and a trail mix of almonds and dried cranberries. Healthy eating is all part of the deal.

Today's hiking outing is shorter than most because there's an afternoon cooking class with Chef Cathy. Good thing too, says Mike,

One afternoon finds Andrea in the kitchen hand-rolling sushi for dinner. One evening Shane grabs his guitar and entertains as we all sit around the fireplace. It's a nice, warm family feel.

Witnessing extreme acts of faith

For the uninitiated, self-harm in the name of religion can be hard to grasp

TheTravelJunkie

A dozen spiritual leaders sit in a neat row. Heads wrapped in green fabric, they chant in harmony; their palms drum faster on tambourines and the music grows more intense. I know what lies ahead and I'm worried.

I'm attending a lesser-known event that happens in the recesses of the Kataragama festival, a two-week long holy gathering in Sri Lanka that attracts 100,000 Hindu, Buddhist and Muslim pilgrims. Devotees, many of whom travel for weeks to get to this auspicious city, have come to worship and perform acts of self-mutilation.

Seated in a semi-circle among the crowd, I watch

as a man with a long grey beard and a white sarong wrapped around his waist steps up. He starts dancing around, slowly working himself into a trance.

Next to a few sticks of burning incense, I see a set of tools, like something out of a medieval torturer's handbook. He reaches for them, preparing to do the unfathomable. I recoil as he takes a knife and hammers it into his own skull.

To the worshippers, this is a chance to prove their complete devotion to God.

The drums beat faster. The man, unfazed by the knife poking out of his head, reaches for a second knife. He hammers the sharp end in with a small rock. The pain must be excruciating, but in this trance-like state of mind, he appears to feel nothing.

He dances around, with two knives sticking out of his head. I watch transfixed. This is one of those random travel moments when I have to ask myself, "Is this really happening?"

A succession of people get up to perform a variety of gut-wrenching acts. One man's cheek is pierced and nailed to a nearby palm tree; another man cuts his own tongue. Then a young boy who looks about 13 is pulled from the crowd. He calmly offers his arm, which is pierced with a long metallic shard.

I'm not particularly religious, and I find it hard to understand why people would do these things to themselves. I learn that there can be a variety of reasons for such acts — voluntary self-punishment, proclamation of faith and proof of invincibility among them. It seems that around the world, across many major faiths and throughout history, self-mutilation for religious purposes is a recurring theme.

An eye-opening experience, for certain.

Rocker never gets rolling

The Rocker

Director: Peter Cattaneo
Stars: Rainn Wilson, Josh Gad
Classification: PG-13
Rating: Ⓢ

BRIAN TOWIE
 brian.towie@metronews.ca

REVIEW The Rocker isn't exactly a detestable knockoff of The School of Rock, but it's about as original, and as funny, as a Yesterday cover.

Rainn Wilson plays Fish, a 1980s hair metal drummer axed from his band just before they hit superstardom. He gets his second chance some 20 years later drumming for his nephew's (Josh Gad) alt-rock group, after a clip of Fish rehearsing in the buff makes its way on the Internet, propelling the band to stardom.

It's a recycled premise and the story arcs play out to formula: Burnt-out, man-child brings nebbish, insecure kids out of their shells by educating them about the greatness of the rock gods who trod the paths currently before them, while he gains a sense of parental responsibility as the exchanges progress.

The Peter Cattaneo-directed (The Full Monty) film is far too sterilized for the Hannah Montana-tween audiences to gain the momentum needed for any real laughs, and the script doesn't play to Wilson's ironic and cerebral comedic strengths.

The film does have its bright lights. Saturday Night Live's Jason Sudeikis plays the sleazebag manager to a tee. Will Arnett, so adept at the role of the heavy, shines once again as the pretentious and corrupt airhead lead singer of the band that exiled Fish.

Showbiz tough for celebs' kids

STEVE GOW
 for Metro Canada

In The House Bunny, Rumer Willis plays a socially awkward sorority girl in a backbrace. Oddly enough, it was the ideal part for the young actress to launch her career.

"I was a big dork," admits Willis recently in L.A. "I just wasn't necessarily too active in really getting into the social crowd so I definitely understood the (idea of) not fitting in."

Rumer Willis may prove the exception to the rule. She's the daughter of Hollywood icons Demi Moore and Bruce Willis — an esteemed lineage that naturally breeds instant popularity, fame and an entitled acting career, doesn't it?

Not necessarily. While huge stars like Angelina

Kat Dennings, from left, Anna Faris, Katharine McPhee, Emma Stone and Rumer Willis star in The House Bunny.

Jolie, Ben Stiller, Kate Hudson and Miley Cyrus belong to what writer Gary Susman once described as a "hereditary aristocracy," being born to famous parents doesn't guarantee Hollywood fame. Though, it does open doors: Casting director Billy Hopkins once admitted that if a celebrity's kid wants to act, "of course you will meet them."

It's a technical advantage that doesn't ensure a career. We all know Martin Sheen's sons Charlie and Emilio Estevez, but you probably aren't familiar with their sibling Ramon Estevez unless you've rented a stinker titled Alligator II: The Mutation.

Many celebrities' kids don't succeed in showbiz because they're also not willing to do the work. As Willis discovered making

The House Bunny (which also stars Tom Hanks' son, Colin), being around a film set is not the same as filmmaking. "I grew up around sets when I was younger but I was never necessarily in the movies," says Willis. "I'd just kind of sit in the trailer and hang out."

"There's a definite shift in your mindset when you go from being the accessory and then to being the one who's in front of the camera."

Perhaps the biggest reason celebrities' kids aren't guaranteed success is that they draw cynicism of over-exposure in magazines. For serious actors like Rumer Willis, that's a big danger to avoid. "The media is a very interesting outlet because it allows people to see how they think you are, an idea of you but it's not necessarily who you really are."

The network and producing studio issued a statement Monday saying they won't be sending out DVDs of the highly anticipated show before its Sept. 2 premiere.

Milwaukee erects bronze Fonz

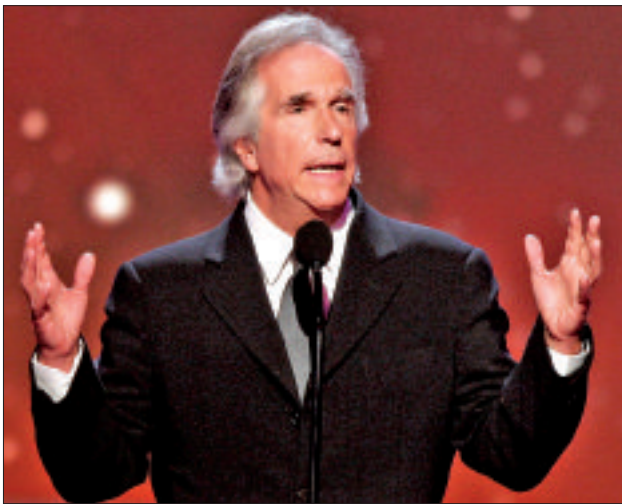

IntelleVision

FONZ IN BRONZE: I don't think I'm alone in thinking that there's something a bit sad about the commemorative statues to long-gone TV shows being erected by the cities in which they were putatively set. Every year a new one is dedicated, and this week Milwaukee got its own, to join the memorials to prime time past in cities like Minneapolis, Chicago, New York, Salem, Mass. and Raleigh, NC, dedicated to the posterity of TV characters such as Mary Richards, Dr. Robert Hartley, Ralph Kramden, Samantha Stephens and Sheriff Andy Taylor. If you don't recognize any of those names, don't worry — these bronze likenesses aren't meant for you, but for those fervent souls who will put a detour in their weekend, or even their vacation, to travel to the street corner where they're on display, to beg passersby to take a quick snap of them throwing their knitted hat in the air, or twitching their nose suggestively. The keen of eye will notice that they all celebrate shows that were popular from the '50s to the '70s — the heyday of boomer primetime pop culture. For the rest of us, it's hard not to regard them as the (barely) acceptable face of the self-mythologizing impulse that would create a (shudder) Woodstock museum.

Toronto has its own TV memorial to Al Waxman, the man who played Larry King on The King Of Kensington. The statue is in Kensington Market, appropriately, though it's of Waxman as himself, and not in character. It's also unique in that the show it commemorates was actually filmed in the same city where it was set, unlike every other TV memorial, including the newest to Henry Winkler as Arthur "The Fonz" Fonza-

A life-size monument of Henry Winkler ("The Fonz") is the latest in a trend of commemorative TV show statues being created.

li from ABC's Happy Days. Milwaukee's media were out in force to cover the unveiling, with no less than three columns in the Milwaukee Journal-Sentinel on the significance of the life-sized (5'6" — Winkler is not a giant) statue of The Fonz, thumbs up as he delivered his trademark catchphrase. (I won't repeat it here — ask your dad). TV columnist Tim Cuprisin wondered about the local inspirations for Arnold's Drive-In and the all-American Cunningham family, while Jim Stingl followed around cast members as they visited local points of interest (the MillerCoors brewery, the Harley-Davidson museum). Eugene Cane got the bleaker task of comparing the bygone setting of the show (the late '50s, theoretically, though by the end of its 11-season run it was set in some temporal no-man's land) with the grimmer realities of Milwaukee today. "Nobody worried Joanie would come home pregnant because girls her age didn't get pregnant." Cane wrote. "The Cunninghams lived in the city, not the suburbs, and they were proud of it." Sorry to quibble, but girls Joanie's age did get pregnant back then — I'm living proof of that. Milwaukee's ownership of Happy Days with its bronze Fonz is touching, but the show was only barely about Milwaukee, and more about the first stages of boomer nostalgia for the comfortable home life their generation's leading lights had so noisily rejected mere years before. Bending to the first law of period productions, it was really about the time when it was made, a fact cast in bronze years ago when the Jaws craze prompted Happy Days to inspire the phrase "jumping the shark" (Google it, youngsters).

Mom inspired cancer battle: Applegate

SURVIVOR Actress Christina Applegate knew she would survive breast cancer — because she watched her own mother battle with the disease for years, IMDB.COM reports.

The 36-year-old star underwent a double mastectomy following her diagnosis with the deadly illness last month — leaving her "clear" of any tumours.

And she insists her mother Nancy — a two-time breast cancer survivor — was her saviour throughout the battle.

She says, "I watched (my mother) have a mastectomy, and then I watched her go through two years of chemotherapy and eight surgeries and a hysterectomy. I've watched this woman survive ... so for me there was always that sense I was going to be okay, no matter what.

"I really love living and I really love my life and I knew from this moment on there was only going to be good that was going to be coming.

"Yeah, I'm going to face challenges, but you can't get any darker than where I've been. So just knowing that in my soul gave me the strength to just say I have to get out there and make this a positive."

The Fool's Gold actress is said to have been bombarding the Wedding Crashers star with phone calls since her split from cyclist Lance Armstrong last month, and although her old flame initially wasn't interested, he is now considering rebuilding their relationship for a third time.

A source said:

"He was frosty at first. He felt betrayed when she dumped him for his friend Lance. But after a while, he caved in and has been sweet to her."

The pair first dated in 2006 after meeting on the set of You, Me and Dupree.

Owen attempted suicide soon after their break-up in June 2007. They enjoyed a brief reconciliation earlier this year. METRO NEWS SERVICES

If Britney Spears thinks her legal fees are too high, she has only herself to blame. She should have represented herself in court, like K-Fed did. Apparently his rap version of Inherit the Wind really swung the custody battle his way.

Will Kate Hudson and Owen Wilson be third time lucky? You know, there's an unwritten law about not trying to get back with someone who once attempted suicide when you broke up with them before. Of course, the fact that it's unwritten may explain why Kate Hudson hasn't read it. That's why I'm writing it now: Step away from the tousle-haired man-child, harlot, if he dies Ben Stiller's movies will become even less funny than they already are.

So Paris Hilton has denied ever having plastic surgery to enhance the size of her breasts. Now keep an eye on her nose, to see if that gets any bigger.
